

President Nixon Explains Stand on Supreme Court Appointments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday he will never nominate a personal or political friend for the Supreme Court and will not consider race, religion or geography in making such selections.

Nixon met informally with newsmen in his oval office and, at what turned out to be a single-subject news conference, talked at length about the court and his nomination of Warren E. Burger to be chief justice. However, the President asked that he not be quoted directly and that publication of reports of the conference be withheld for several hours.

At this time, Nixon said, the Supreme Court needs an infusion of members whose nominations raise no questions about personal friendship or political considerations.

The chief executive said he feels particularly strongly about this because of the unprecedented instance recently in which Abe Fortas, long a close friend and associate of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, resigned from the court under fire.

Fortas held what has been regarded as the "Jewish seat" on the court.

Nixon said he does not believe in having a Jewish, Catholic or Negro seat and that any justices he nominates will not be selected to achieve racial, religious or geographic balance on the court.

Before deciding Wednesday to nominate Burger, he reported, he ruled out a close friend and Duke Law School classmate, Charles E. Rhyne, precisely because he and Rhyne have been friends for many years.

In addition, Nixon said, four others whom he considers qualified for the chief justiceship let him know they did not want to be considered for the job. He listed these as Associate Justice Potter Stewart, former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, and the present attorney general, John Mitchell.

Nixon said he selected Burger because his opinions as a circuit court judge and his public speeches mark him as one who will be strict in interpreting the Constitution and whose views on constitutional issues affecting law and order are in disagreement with those of the present Supreme Court majority.

While campaigning for the presidency last fall, Nixon said court decisions were "seriously

Living Costs Reach 18-Year High Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — The swiftest rise in living costs in 18 years continued in April with another hefty hike of six tenths of one per cent the government reported Thursday.

Price hikes for food, clothing, transportation, medical care and recreation pushed the Labor Department's consumer price index to 126.4.

This means it cost $12.64 last month for the same typical family purchases that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

The soaring price spiral, exceeded only in the Korean War and World War I eras, has eroded nearly a nickel in the past year from the already emaciated dollar of a decade ago.

The value of the dollar dropped from 83.4 cents a year ago to 79.1 cents last month in terms of 1957-59 purchasing power.

The April hike alone in living costs chipped away half a cent and cost some 45 million workers nearly 50 cents a week in lost purchasing power.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who earlier had joined other government economists in predicting a slowdown in inflation, declined to make any guesses about the future this time.

He reported that prices in the past three months have risen at an annual rate of 7.6 per cent, only slightly below the 1951 inflation of 8 per cent before Korean War wage-price controls were imposed.

The 8 per cent rate was exceeded only once before, in 1919 after World War I.

The Nixon administration, like the Democratic administration of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, has steadfastly refused to consider any form of wage-price controls to curb the current inflation.

Laird Urges Stronger Viet Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird indicated Thursday the United States is giving increased priority to preparing the South Vietnamese for assuming more of the Vietnam fighting if the Paris peace talks should fail.

At the same time, Laird told a meeting of business and civic leaders that "while the enemy has been talking peace, he has during recent weeks been stepping up his offensive military operations."

The tone of Laird's remarks seemed more pessimistic than those by U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge who said in Paris is that "we think a basis now exists for productive discussion of the key issues" between the warring parties in the Vietnam war.

While saying he "hopes and prays" that President Nixon's new initiatives for peace will be successful, Laird asserted: "As a defense planner, I must be prepared for the possibility that negotiations in Paris will remain stalled and that the enemy may not respond to the President's proposals for peace in Vietnam—the highest priority of this administration."

No Progress Made At Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The United States said Thursday "a basis now exists for productive discussions of key issues" and the negotiators at the Paris peace talks opened debate on rival plans. But both sides acknowledged they were unable to make progress.

The 18th full-scale session of the talks lasted four hours and 50 minutes, but afterward, Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief negotiator, said: "Today the conference made no progress at all."

Spaceship Goes Into 'Wild Gyrations'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 10 astronauts rocketed toward the safety of the mother ship after their fragile moon lander spacecraft went into "wild gyrations" Thursday as they whipped low over the moon.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford brought the lunar module back into control and successfully fired a rocket burn necessary to rejoining the command ship.

Stafford, flying with Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, said the lunar module "just took off on us" as he jettisoned the lower stage of the craft.

The gyrations came just before the first critical burn of the rendezvous maneuver.

The command module was orbiting 69 miles above the moon and manned by Navy Cmdr. John W. Young.

The uncontrolled movements of the spacecraft at staging may have been caused by a failure of the crew to put a switch in the correct position, ground controllers said later.

When told of it, Stafford said, "Okay, we'll try to correct it. I thought we went through the check list as prescribed."

"Boy," said Cernan, "I'll tell you I thought we were wobbling all over the sky."

Stafford and Cernan, flying the final test of a full-covered spacecraft designed to land on the moon, twice whipped just 9.4 miles above the craggy surface of the moon.

They flashed past the surface at 3,700 miles an hour over an expanse they said looked "like very wet clay."

The lunar module, a small craft unable to take the strain of returning to earth, was to be discarded in space.

The uncontrolled flight of the lunar module was not the first problem faced by Stafford and Cernan.

The triumphant dip toward the lunar surface came only 90 minutes after it appeared for a time that the mission might fall in its major purpose.

Docking collar where the lunar module would meet the command module was reported "smooth."

Landing Site Reported 'Smooth'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Low-flying Apollo 10 pilots Thursday said the site where Americans plan to land on the moon July 20 is "pretty smooth" and another potential touchdown area further east has "enough boulders to fill up Galveston Bay."

Swooping in a Lunar Module (LEM) landing craft less than 10 miles above the two landing sites, Apollo 10 pilot Eugene A. Cernan said the area is "very distinguishable," however—thus meeting a prime requirement of being easy to find.

Astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, Cernan's copilot in the splendor flying machine, said, "We have different shades of brown and gray here, and you can see some large boulders that are black and gray."

"There are enough boulders around here to fill up Galveston Bay," Stafford radioed as the pilots zipped over a spot designated Landing Site 1 in the Sea by the Game Commission in 1968, and the 33,589 non-resident fishing licenses sold last year, there is no doubt that the state's recreation and tourism efforts are paying off.

He said that Pennsylvania has the enviable inventory of more than 40,000 square miles of open area to offer to the residents of the surrounding megalopolis.

"There are two ways we can now define," Shoemaker said, "to generate additional economic development in the travel fields."

"First," he said, "we must continue the traditional generation of more traffic, and second, we must not accept the competitive position developed by promotion, we must not accept the limitations posed by existing patterns of available facilities, but we must systematically and deliberately promote investment in the development of new facilities which, of course, in turn will change our areas' competitive position and enable us to generate additional and new traffic."

Shoemaker said there is a distinct opportunity to combine industrial development and travel recreation development by providing new resort communities as sites for corporate headquarters and other facilities to retain key executives. He cited entrance into this field by the Alcoa Corporation, the American Cement Company and Chrysler Corporation. Chrysler Corporation, he said, has already made its move in a very important way in Pennsylvania and that it will, by 1975, have a billion and one-half dollars in new real estate developments, exceeding their investment in the automobile production business.

Shoemaker also said that all must watch the mushrooming interest in the demand for second homes. "What a wonderful outlook for Pennsylvania which is in the ideal location to provide the sites for the second homes of those who live in the megalopolis of the eastern corridor," he said.

Toastmaster for the occasion was W. Leroy Schneek, president of the KDVB. The invocation was by the Rev. Richard H. Baker, rector, Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church. Introductory remarks were made by Ralph H. Freeman, supervisor, Allegheny National Forest. Charles R. Tranter, executive director, and Robert C. Dilks, development director spoke on the accomplishments and the future of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau.

teaching, writing and lecturing on general legal subjects and compensation for these activities could not be out of line for the services rendered.

If these standards are adopted, the result would be to rule out such involvements as former Justice Abe Fortas's receipt of $20,000—which he later returned—for advice to the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson.

They would also apparently preclude Justice William O. Douglas from continuing to receive an annual $12,000 stipend as president of the Parvin Foundation.

Troopers said the auto went off the highway, then crossed the road and struck a guard fence. Moorehead told troopers his car was forced off the road by an oncoming car.

U.S. Battle Deaths Spiralled Last Week

Landing

of Tranquillity, east of the touchdown target chosen for Apollo 11.

The primary target, named Site 2 and located near the lunar equator, also on the Sea of Tranquillity, "looks pretty smooth, surprisingly enough," Cernan said.

Earlier, inside the command ship with their Apollo 10 crewmate John W. Young, Cernan said the view from a 69-mile-high circular orbit showed the prime polio 11 target is "a little bit rugged, but the rills, the low ridges are very distinguishable approaching the landing sites."

The landing sites were chosen more for operational and crew safety reasons than in the interest of science.

More than two years of study by a blue ribbon panel of experts identified five specific sites near the moon's equator which appeared safe for astronauts to land.

Astronauts

nar lander and the main spacecraft were connected slipped away by about 3.5 degrees. The astronauts were instructed that if it slipped three more degrees they were not to undock.

The astronauts—while back of the moon and cut off from earth—decided there was no problem and broke the link between the two craft. Young was left to man the command ship.

"Snoopy," the little landing craft, and "Charlie Brown," the command ship, separated. For a while they flew formation. Then the lander's rocket was triggered.

When, it streaked over the site when Americans hope to walk in two months Cernan radioed to earth, "We're right there! We're right over it! I'm telling you, we are low, we're close, babe. This is it!" Stafford called off landmarks appearing below the spacecraft as its orbital loop carried it over the planned landing site of Apollo 11.

"Okay," he said, "we are coming up over the site. There's plenty of holes there. The surface is actually very smooth, like a very wet clay...with the exception of the bigger craters."

After some six minutes at the low point over the moon, the astronauts fired their rocket engine again. This burn started a series of firings needed to bring the craft into a rendezvous area with the command ship.

School Teachers, Board Members Reach Impasse

JAMESTOWN — The Jamestown Teachers Association and the Board of Education have reached an impasse in contract negotiations for the 1969-70 school year. In separate statements released Thursday afternoon, JTA President Donald Bube and E. Milton Johnson, outgoing board president, agreed that negotiations thus far have produced no meaningful results.

Johnson said the board has requested the State Public Employees Relations Board to send a mediator as soon as possible to help resolve the impasse. Both sides were critical of the other for the way in which they have negotiated to date.

Bube said the board's action as being bad faith and said, "They have simply broken off all negotiations without just cause in violation of both the letter and the spirit of the New York State Taylor Law."

The impasse in Jamestown follows on the heels of several other deadlocks in negotiations at Southwestern, Clymer, Brocton and Falconer.

Chance Sirhan May Never be Executed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP — The odds are that it will be a long while before Sirhan Bishara Sirhan goes to California's gas chamber—if he ever does. There's a chance the assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy may never be executed.

Prison authorities declined to speculate Thursday on the prospect that Sirhan might escape death, to which he formally was sentenced Wednesday by a Los Angeles judge.

But an indication of his chances is reflected by figures on the fate of others sent to San Quentin Prison's crowded Death Row.

The State Department of Corrections says that of 93 death penalty cases on which there was action between Jan. 1, 1963, and March 31, 1969, the following happened:

Two were executed. Thirty-two were returned to Death Row after new trials or penalty trials. Nine had sentences commuted by the governor to life without possibility of parole. One sentence was commuted to life.

Fourteen received life after a new penalty trial, and 16 received life after a new trial. Two got suspended sentences after a new trial. One was reversed on appeal and not retried. One was reduced to second degree murder after a new trial. Five were reduced to second degree by appeals courts. Ten cases still are pending.

Thus, in but 34 of the 93 cases decided did the original death penalty stand.

Sirhan's attorneys cited 13 reasons for a new trial, but were turned down. Death penalty cases are automatically appealed to the California Supreme Court, which takes about a year. Sirhan's attorneys say they will go to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, which would take additional time.

Officially, California has firmly stood behind its death penalty in recent years. But various court cases and decisions have cast the penalty in legal doubt and delayed executions.

When he goes to San Quentin near San Francisco, Sirhan will join 77 other condemned men. One condemned woman is housed at another prison. Of the 77, the average stay on Death Row has been more than two years.

The longest is more than five. The last man executed in the apple green two-seat chamber was Aaron Mitchell of Sacramento. He died April 12, 1967, after 2½ years on the row.

How does Sirhan regard his future? A defense investigator quoted him as saying after his sentencing: "Well, now the real battle begins."

Gen. Zais Defends Mountain Battle

CAMP EAGLE, Vietnam AP—The commander of the 101st Airborne Division said Thursday he fought the battle of Ap Bia Mountain because the North Vietnamese were there and his mission was "to destroy the enemy forces and installations."

"People are still acting like this was a catastrophe for U.S. troops," Maj. Gen. Melvin Zais told a news conference. "This was a tremendous, gallant victory and we decimated a large North Vietnamese unit."

The mountain overlooking A Shau Valley fell Tuesday and his paratroopers digging through the debris of its tunnels found 82 more North Vietnamese bodies Thursday. This brought the announced total of enemy killed in the battle to 599. U.S. casualties were 46 killed and 308 wounded.

The news conference apparently was called to answer criticism by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who called the A Shau Valley operation "senseless and irresponsible" and said it was fought in part because of "military ego."

Although he said the battle had "nothing to do with the allegation of military ego," Zais said he would not reply directly to Kennedy. Zais also is from Massachusetts, hailing from Fall River.

"I fight the war here to the best of my ability as a division commander," Zais continued. "He performs as a senator to the best of his ability in Washington.

"I don't know what he is thinking or what the environmental conditions were or what information he was provided. And I know for sure he was not here."

The operation known as Apache Snow, kicked off May 10 in a sweep by 2,800 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops west of the A Shau Valley to cut off North Vietnamese in the valley and to choke off infiltration from nearby Laos.

PSEA To Discuss Teacher Walkouts

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Education Association said its 1,000-member House of Delegates will meet here Saturday to discuss the recent wave of teacher strikes and how future strikes may be avoided through enactment of a new public employees law.

Group Formed To Oversee Book Content

Haggerty Jr., Vice President and Secretary of the Warren National Bank.

Serving on the committee will be Gary Shepherd, National Forge Company; Michael Mead, Times-Mirror and Observer; Bill Landahl, Style Shop; James Torrance, Warren National Bank; Jerry Karshna, Thomas Coupling Company—Division Rex Chainbelt; Frank Christy, Warren County School District; and Stan Glossner, Sylvania Electric Products Inc. It is expected that copies of the booklet, supported by advertising, will be available this fall.

Apartment Complex Open House Tues.

An open house, celebrating the completion of the 56 unit Garden apartment complex in Pleasant Township developed by Harris Homes in Erie will be held Tuesday May 27 from 4 to 6 p.m. "Invitations to community leaders have been mailed by the Warren County Chamber of Commerce and a model apartment will also be available for inspection," said Richard A. Wolfe, chairman of the chamber's housing committee and rental agent for the project.

Dr. Helen D. Wise of State College, PSEA president, announced plans for the special session Thursday, indicating growing concern with the legislature's slowness in acting on a bill that would require school boards to negotiate with teacher groups.

"The turmoil we've experienced during the past several weeks during which teachers in more than 15 school districts have been forced to withhold their services or take similar drastic measures can be traced almost entirely to the unwillingness on the part of school boards to negotiate in good faith with their teacher organizations," Dr. Wise said.

"We are certain that if Pennsylvania had a public employee

Frame Calls Public Employee Law Hearing

Senator Richard C. Frame, chairman of the State Government Committee of the Pennsylvania Senate, has called a committee hearing to consider proposals for a Public Employee Relations Law. The hearing will be held today.

Attorney General William C. Sennett will be the first of 11 witnesses scheduled to testify. Also expected to testify are representatives of the state Chamber of Commerce, state Education Association, state School Boards Association, Pennsylvania League of Cities, Pennsylvania Association of Boroughs and the Pennsylvania State Teachers Association.

Frame said the goal of the hearing is, "... to develop legislation that will guarantee the rights of and benefit all public employees and at the same time protect the public interest."

negotiations law for teachers as do 18 other states, much of the heartache and hard feelings that have been generated in the past weeks could have been avoided. PSEA feels that a special negotiations law for teachers must be passed as soon as possible before the legislature recesses for the summer so that we can avoid additional crises when school reopens in September."

The Senate State Government Committee was scheduled to hold a public hearing Friday on a Shafer administration proposal that would cover all public employees, but the PSEA has voiced support for special legislation covering teachers.

Dr. Wise said the special session of the House of Delegates would hear teacher representatives from four school districts where there have been strikes or threatened strikes. The districts are Gateway, New Castle, Chester and Nesheim.

Stand Against the SDS

When the Very Reverend Reginald A. Redlon, president of St. Bonaventure University, took a determined stand against the activities of the Students for a Democratic Society on the campus of his school, he demonstrated the type of determination that establishes him as an out standing educational administrator. Right or wrong, Father Redlon saw the need for guidance to his student body and instituted the necessary action to set forth in no uncertain terms what course his guidance would take when he banned the SDS from operating openly at St. Bonaventure.

This is the kind of action the American public has a right to expect from those administrators who are charged with the character development of our youth. For at their formative age they, least of all, should not be exposed to wishy-washy thinking or indecisiveness on important matters by those persons to whom they look for direction.

Burger and GOP Symbols

NEW YORK — Judge Warren Earl Burger is such a perfect symbol of the qualities and values President Nixon is clearly trying to emphasize in his new administration that reporters now have to wonder why they were so timid in predicting that he would be Nixon's nominee as Chief Justice of the United States.

Burger is experienced, industrious, middle-class, middle-aged, middle of the road, middle-western, Presbyterian, orderly and handsome.

The old-boy network at Yale is grieving that the President did not elevate Associate Justice Stewart to the top job, and the liberals and intellectuals would clearly have preferred Paul Freund of Harvard or Judge Friendly, who is probably the most admired judge in the lower courts; but Burger was clearly the obvious man for Nixon at the present time.

The mood of the moment is not for innovation but consolidation. Nixon is clearly not thinking about how to do spectacular new things, pass dramatic new laws, or introduce new dramatic figures or issues into the present social turmoil. He is trying to slow things down at home and abroad, absorb the experiments and innovations of the past, lower the tension and minimize the controversy about the court both in Congress and the country.

The President may be right and he may be wrong in think-

Golf, Anyone?

After years of holding back, I am finally trying seriously to learn to play golf -- and even before I join you in your summer madness, I am discovering that I haven't taken up a game. I have become part of a fabulous "economic force." I am not simply succumbing to a popular pastime; I have become an eager paying customer of an array of businesses which together add up to a golf market of $6 billion a year and range from golf hardware to club memberships, from haute couture golfwear to 19th hole refreshments.

To be honest, though, how much of a laggard can I be? As of today, 11 million of you are playing golf, up 183 per cent in only 10 years (and the number is still climbing at the rate of 6 1/2 per cent each year, according to Universal Publishing & Distributing Corp., publisher of "Golf" and "Golf-dom"). And these are just the golfers who play at least 15 rounds annually; another two million play less rounds each year. Incidentally, although 87 per cent are male, the number of women playing golf regularly is climbing faster than the number of men.

As for the "why?" that's easy. As in the case with virtually all sports, the upsurge in golf reflects our era of growing leisure time and prosperity. The typical golfer, says Golf Magazine, has attained a relatively high income; the average income of Golf's subscribers is close to $17,000 a year. Even more revealing is the finding that almost four in 10 golfers now take vacations exclusively to play golf -- which accounts for the rapid rise in the past decade of the golf resort.

At the same time, golf is no longer a rich man's sport. In the early 1930s, nearly four-fifths of the 5,700 golf courses in the U.S. were private, expensive country clubs. In the small remainder were all the municipal and semi-private courses. Today, there are an estimated 10,000 courses, of which a bare 4,000 are private. The balance includes thousands of municipal and semi-private courses. About 300 new courses are being built yearly.

Third, the value of the game as a lifetime sport is being increasingly recognized and this is particularly so for the physically handicapped and the elderly. The boom in golf carts, so ideal for those with heart ailments, is just one illustration of the business offshoots of this fabulously growing game.

Finally, the popularity of golf is encouraging the construction of nine-hole and par-three courses which use up far less space. This inspires more players, which in turn inspires more construction of golf courses near to urban areas, etc.

But even if you go along with me this far, you well might consider the $6 billion estimate a wild exaggeration. Here's a breakdown, as put together by Golf and Golf-dom:

For equipment: on this alone we spend about $500 million a year now, up from $65 million 20 years ago. Included here are clubs, balls, bags, sundries, cart rentals, golf lessons and clothes -- slacks, skirts, socks, shoes, gloves, hats and on and on.

For club dues and greens fees: about $2.7 billion annually.

For food and drink at the courses and clubs: roughly $1.5 billion a year. (If I'm average, Golf assures me, I'll drink $105.69 of hard liquor; $29.95 of beer, $21.51 of wine, $14.97 of soft drinks. And play golf too?)

For annual maintenance of the golf courses: $500 million. For transportation and vacation costs solely related to golf: $8 million.

Then on top of that, Universal Publishing puts the realty value of golf courses conservatively at $2.8 billion and insists the "typical golf course raises property values, indirectly attracts industry to the community and creates new businesses."

And as a final touch on the money aspects of golf, here's an earnings -- as contrasted to a spending -- note:

The professional pot for the touring professional golfer is now up to $5 MILLION! Golf, anyone?

Tragic Fact Of History

One of the tragic facts of history is that it required 187 years to build the United States of America from a wilderness to the position of the most powerful nation of all time, and it took exactly five years to tear it down to a position of ridicule.

Bishop

If I am permitted to call things as I see them, then I submit that five more years of this agony of protest will cause this nation to disappear as Atlantis did. As heart-rending as the Civil War was, it was a military matter which was won by the industrial North and, except for the slow-healing of wounds, ended in 1865.

This one isn't like that; it's decay. It is something which can be smelled muskily on the streets, in the colleges, in the legislative halls. We have no strong man to lead us; to point the way. And if we had, he would be hooted and laughed at.

We are in a period of government by secrecy, and this may develop into a plus rather than a minus, provided that the secrets mask progress. I cannot think of any time in my life when I was chronically frightened, but I am now. I will not permit my wife and children to take a walk after dark.

Ten percent of our people have dark skin. Ninety percent have white skin. For three hundred years the dark ones have wanted to join the white ones on a basis of complete equality. Now that the whites have been admonished to do it, the ten percent do not want it. For reasons which I cannot divine, they subvert the law they sought and want to impose their ghetto culture on the ninety percent.

Everyone makes demands. No one pleads a case, or relies on logic to make his point. One group wants $500,000,000 in reparations. Others armed with rifles wearing cross-belts of ammunition prefer to set fire to schools for learning. University presidents, with rabbit courage, sit with the revolutionaries and hold hands.

Our nation impoverishes itself by spending 70 billions of dollars each year for weapons which may never be used. Black children, with big brown innocent eyes, learn lesson number one: be afraid of the white man. He does not know that this babyish fear has now spread everywhere. It's a checkerboard struggle -- one color against another.

The countries to whom we send money denounce the United States. It is even possible that Mao T'se-tung, five years ago, was correct when he referred to us as a paper tiger. His friends capture our ship and make us apologize for it. The stiff-spined naval officers take the witness stand one after another -- to weep.

We are mocked, and perhaps rightfully so. Everybody is on the take. Once upon a time, when Old Glory was run up a staff, men felt a lump in their throats because this was the symbol of justice and might and democracy. It is fashionable now, not to salute the flag, but to stomp on it and burn it.

There is no control, no discipline, and precious little patriotism. The policeman is the bad guy. Judges, those infinitely austere men who dispense justice, employ bag men who take money so that the defendant is guaranteed to go free. Our children think it is clever to cheat on school examinations. Often, they buy the answers.

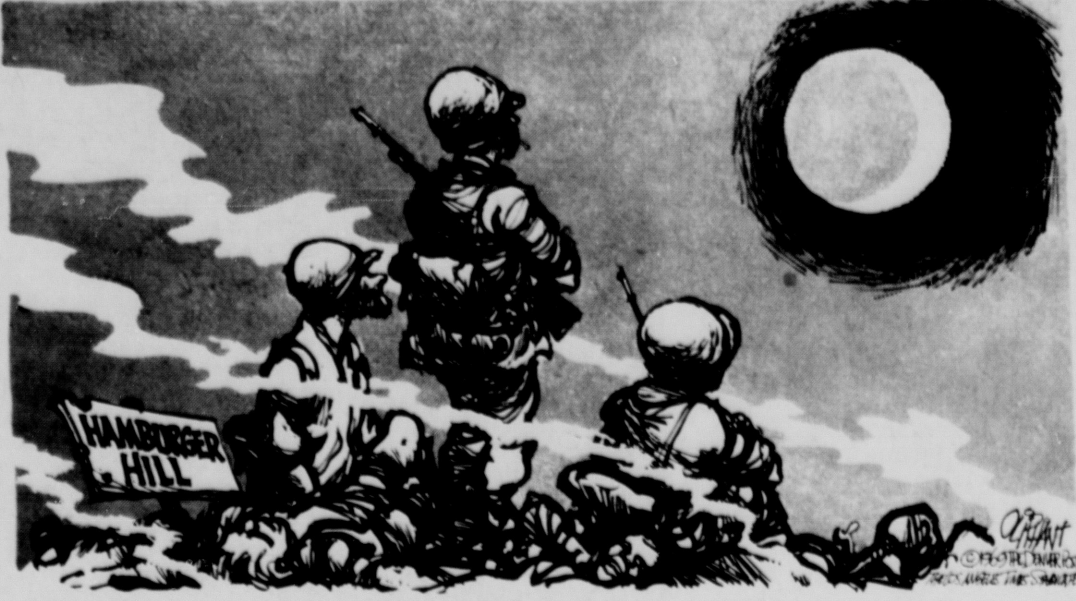

Forty percent of the world starves, and the United States pays the farmer not to plant seed. When we hear the name Vietnam, we spit in disgust but the Communists laugh at our dilemma: They know we can not leave the jungle in defeat and, if we stay, we cannot win. We have an intelligent Cosa Nostra which has divided our nation into spheres of influence. So we pay a few pennies more for everything. In one city a week ago -- chuck steak was selling for $2.99 a pound. The tax bill for the defense of America comes to $350 a year for each man, woman and child. Taxes climb, but education declines.

Many of our graduates cannot spell. The Pueblo still stands at anchor in an enemy port and we dare not send torpedo planes in to sink our own ship. We can no longer be provoked, no matter how often our faces are ground into the mud.

Not too long ago, I watched the wise old Speaker of the House, John W. McCormack, emerge from the House well and start down the marble corridor to his office. An assistant hurried to his side and said: "Don't go to your office, Mr. Speaker. There are a dozen blacks and whites in there lying on your floor."

The white head fell forward a notch and he smiled. "Run ahead of me," he said softly, "and offer jobs to all of them. They'll disperse." . . .

Peace Corps—CIA Link

WASHINGTON—The late President Kennedy's orders to keep the Peace Corps free of any CIA taint have been quietly abandoned. The new Peace Corps head, dynamic, 34-year-old Joe Blatchford, came to the Nixon administration from Accion, a volunteer organization that has accepted money from at least two CIA fronts.

President Kennedy was so determined to disassociate the Peace Corps from the Central Intelligence Agency that he gave strict instructions to his CIA chief, John McCone, and Peace Corps director, Sargent Shriver, to permit no liaison between the two agencies.

Carrying out these instructions, Shriver issued specific orders in 1962 to all his country directors in Latin America not to associate with anyone from Accion, because it was operating with the guidance of the CIA.

Now Accion's former executive director has been put in charge of the Peace Corps. Blatchford was recommended by Pepsi Cola president Don Kendall, who is president of Accion. It was largely Kendall who persuaded one of Wall Street's most distinguished law firms in 1963 to accept Richard Nixon as senior partner. Thereafter, Nixon traveled around the world representing Pepsi Cola.

Accion has done some outstanding volunteer work in Venezuela, Brazil and Argentina. However, it has received indirect CIA financing through the Donner Foundation and the Free Labor Committee.

Kendall also got a contribution for Accion from the Nixon law firm and appointed Nixon's law partner, Milton Rose, to Accion's board of directors. Terry Holcombe, who replaced Blatchford as Accion's executive director, admitted to this column that Accion has received $50,000 from the Donner Foundation.

"We would accept another donation," he added. "No one has said or done anything to convince me that the Donner Foundation did not act with Accion's best interests in mind. I believe the correct theory behind Shriver's orders for Peace Corps volunteers not to meet with members of Accion was to insure that Accion did not become a threat to the Peace Corps. I think Shriver was looking out for his own skin."

The president of the Donner Foundation, incidentally, is Franklin Johnson, a former CIA official.

Note: Despite the CIA taint, Blatchford is highly regarded as an able, aggressive administrator.

Less than two weeks after this column exposed irregularities in the Cheyenne helicopter program, the Army cancelled its contract with Lockheed for the production of the combat helicopters. Lockheed stands to lose $900 million in production profits.

We reported that Rep. Mendel Rivers, the czar of the House Armed Services Committee, blocked an investigation into the Cheyenne program last year. Earlier, Lockheed had helped erect a monument to Rivers in North Charleston, S. C.

New York's Rep. Otis Pike asked Rivers to investigate the skyrocketing Cheyenne costs a year ago. He cited the fact that an Army document, related to the Cheyenne contract, was signed by former Assistant Army Secretary Willis Hawkins, who came to the Pentagon from Lockheed and later returned to his same desk at Lockheed.

But Rivers, who has favored Lockheed in other backstage negotiations at the Pentagon, refused to listen to Pike.

"I was elected to run this committee; I will handle it," Rivers snapped. "So I did handle it, and I called in my chief counsel, I called in Mr. Bates (Massachusetts Congressman William Bates, Senior Republican on the committee). . . We handled it, and there wasn't any investigation."

"Right," said Pike wearily. "So that is the situation," declared Rivers with finality. "Now, at least we got the Cheyenne."

When Pike raised his objections to the Cheyenne on the House floor, Rivers had Speaker John McCormack step down from the rostrum to settle the matter.

"Where the national interest of our country is concerned," intoned the Speaker, "if I am going to err in judgment, I would rather err on the side of strength. . . I am willing to follow the leadership of the gentleman from South Carolina (Rivers)."

On previous occasions, McCormack has joked that he and Rivers have their own private political party with a membership of two. It now looks as if Rivers and McCormack were really protecting the interests of Lockheed, not of the country.

Note: The snow-manned Rivers and his chief counsel, Russ Blandford, run the Armed Services Committee in an arbitrary and arrogant manner. They make the multi-billion-dollar weapons decisions after mere token consultation with the membership. At hearings, other members are given only five minutes to question witnesses. Rivers keeps an alarm clock on the rostrum to let him know when the five minutes are up.

In our Wednesday, May 21 column, we quoted a New York Daily News endorsement of the National Youth Alliance. When we tried to tell the editorial writer, Reuben Maury, that NYA was a Nazi front, he challenged us to print the story "if you have the guts."

Quietly, however, the Daily News asked its Washington Bureau to check into the NYA.

It takes character for a great newspaper to admit it was wrong. The Daily News has now done this.

As a result of its investigation, the News has declared: "Any News endorsement of that organization (NYA) implied in the editorial remarks is hereby withdrawn."

A Dearth of Envoys

WASHINGTON — The reason for embarrassing delay in naming new U.S. envoys is that distinguished Republicans have shown reluctance to accept diplomatic assignments while the State Department has discovered that its current generation of ranking professionals is dismally short in ambassadorial material. There is coincidental decline in the moral sense of obligation among normal civilian leaders and in trained government cadres.

Early in the Nixon administration word was quietly circulated that career members of the U.S. Foreign Service would not be awarded embassies in Western Europe. These were to be reserved for local Republicans of proven competence. The ruling was set aside for Ridgway Knight, former ambassador in Brussels, now named to Lisbon. Knight was moved to make way for John Eisenhower, son of the former President. Eisenhower felt unhappy at causing this shift and requested an equivalent post for his predecessor. Circumstances could yet unexpectedly provide similar openings to professionals.

Nevertheless, many pleasant or important embassies are either open now or soon will be. The list includes Rome, Canberra, Teheran, Manila, Bonn, Athens, Rawalpindi, Wellington, Stockholm, Oslo and Luxembourg.

Some of these capitals are critically important to the U.S. and others present political problems of great concern. As always when a new administration takes office, there was competition among its distinguished and prosperous backers for fat plums like London but, to everyone's surprise, reluctance was found when non-career men were offered lesser posts.

The instances of Tokyo and Bonn were especially astonishing. These are crucial and U.S. relations with each face the possibility of serious readjustment. Japan is scheduled to start negotiations seeking American relinquishment of special rights in Okinawa; West Germany has national elections in September that could set a future political course.

Yet former Gov. William Scranton, John D. Rockefeller III, William A. M. Burden and Rudolph Peterson (prominent banker) were all considered for Tokyo and each made plain he wasn't interested. In despair the assignment was turned back to the State Department for a career diplomat and Armin Meyer, an ambassador with much experience in the Middle East but none in the Orient, was named. The Japanese were disappointed.

No candidate for Bonn has yet been found. That embassy was offered, either directly or indirectly, to Scranton, Neil H. McElroy, Gen. Lauris Norstad, George Champion and Thomas Gates but each declined the honor. William Tyler, the first-class career envoy to the Netherlands, who speaks excellent German was the obvious choice among professionals but he has just resigned to accept a position in private life.

The foreign service has been exposed as lacking in a new generation of talent following the fading of such old stars as Charles Bohlen, Llewellyn Thompson, Robert Murphy, George Kennan and Ray Hare. Of course, there are exceptions: Jacob Beam, newly named to Moscow; Walworth Barbour, ambassador to Israel; Douglas MacArthur, now being shunted out of Vienna; and a few younger men, including Ambassadors Walter Stoessel, William Leonhart, Richard Davis and William Porter.

Nevertheless, relatively speaking, the State Department has uncovered a kind of vacuum. There are not enough exceptional career officers available. Some veterans claim this is the result of massive incorporation of untrained personnel from other government departments.

Normally speaking the State Department does worst for career diplomats during the first two years of a new administration's first term and best during the last two years of its second term. But this time it wasn't even in a position to make the most of limited opportunities.

One distinguished Republican decided not to accept an embassy after he was told he was being considered for a "very important diplomatic post." He observed: "There is no such thing any more." It is increasingly felt that the role of ambassador has diminished in this age of instant communications and flying secretaries of state.

Nevertheless, the present situation indicates something profoundly disturbing. On the one hand there has been inadequate long-term preparation by the State Department of truly first-rate younger professionals.

On the other hand there seems to be a growing reluctance among Americans to accept governmental service as a citizen's duty. This moral lack, hitherto mirrored in major issues such as national military service, is now reflected in sedate circles at the top.

Trade Mission Program

MAKE UP YOUR MIND, GOVERNOR!—It was back on April 9 that Governor Shafer, in a mimeographed pronouncement, pointed to the "phenomenal success" of Pennsylvania's programs to increase foreign trade within the Keystone State --that is, stimulate international trade for Pennsylvania business and industry.

In fact he termed the program so successful that he said:

"We feel the trade mission program has reached the point where it can be self-supporting and no longer needs aid from the State."

So far so good. However -- over the past week end in another mimeographed gubernatorial pronouncement, His Excellency announced that a third annual trade mission to drum up trade and increase the use of Pennsylvania ports and industry products would go to South America. (It departed this past Wednesday for the six-country jog -- headed by His Excellency.)

Again, so far so good. But who's underwriting the cost of the trip? Travel expenses of the Governor and the eight businessmen are being paid individually -- but travel expenses of four representatives of State Government are being paid by the state, estimated at roughly $5000.

What happened to the "no longer need aid from the State" pronouncement of a month and a half ago? (Of course, there's a bureaucratic answer somewhere, something like: "What we meant was. . .")

As for the international trade program itself, unquestionably it has more than proven its value, for, as Governor Shafer has noted: "Pennsylvania does billions of dollars worth of business with foreign nations each year, and my administration is committed to the continued encouragement of new foreign trade."

(It was following a series of articles by this column in 1963 urging development of foreign trade and the establishment of a governmental agency to oversee such promotion that then new in office Governor Scranton subsequently incorporated the proposal in his budget message to the Legislature that year -- the start of the foreign trade program to which Governor Shafer now alludes.)

NOTE TO HOUSE-HUNTERS -- A serious shortage of mortgage credit looms for prospective home-buyers in Pennsylvania unless a higher interest rate is legalized for lenders such as savings and loan associations -- or so opined Paul W. Williams, president of the Pennsylvania Savings and Loan League this week, who said he foresees "a gradual drying-up of funds for both the purchase and construction of single-family residences if the rate ceiling remains unchanged."

"Approximately nine out of ten loans granted by savings and loan associations are the conventional type and a drought of money for such loans is developing because the legal rate on them is lower than the amount which can be charged by FHA and VA loans," the PSLL chief warned.

THOSE STUDENT LOANS-- Perhaps surprising to many, the volume of student loans guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency during the current academic year is running nearly 50 percent ahead of last year.

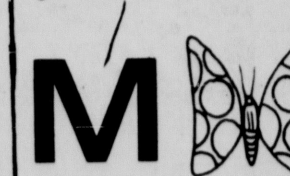

For example, from July 1, 1968 to the first of March of this year, 47,751 loans valued at $43,630,141 have been guaranteed by the state agency, which compares with 32,982 loans valued at $29,555,705 in the same period of the preceding year.

A major factor in the increase in loan activity is believed by PHEAA to be in the inauguration of PHEAA payment of the "lender participation fee" of one-half of one percent of the loan to encourage lenders to provide the low yield student loans.

(The overall total of loans guaranteed by PHEAA as of April 1 stood at 128,751, with a value of $114,349,682.)

ISABELLE'S RELOCATES

Isabelle's Specialty Shoppe is reopening today at its new location, 307 Hickory street across from the municipal building. When Warren's first phase of urban renewal became a reality Isabelle Yeagle was forced to vacate her Liberty street shop. The current site with its exterior and latticed display window allows more room for the array of costume jewelry, loungewear, lingerie and dainty gift items for which Isabelle is famous in the area. Interior decorative touches invite a lengthy visit to shop and choose exactly what the customer is seeking.

Market Closes On Even Keel

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market finished on a fairly even keel Thursday, after an early effort to keep its latest advance rolling faltered.

"The market looks as if it's in kind of an ebb and flow pattern," an analyst said. "The kind of market that advances a couple of days."

Brokers said the bargain hunters who jumped into the market Wednesday in search of good buys after two straight sessions of sharp losses continued active early in Thursday's session, "but later much of this kind of buying began to dry up."

The Dow Jones industrial average moved ahead in early trading and by 11:30 a.m. was up 4.08. But it began to drift downward after that, and at the close it was off 1.74 at 950.04. The Dow gained 2.52 Wednesday, after losing more than 18 points Monday and Tuesday.

The trading pace picked up with 13.71 million shares changing hands, compared with 12.11 million Monday.

Early in the day, gains held a better than 350 issue advantage over losses. But this was cut sharply later, and of 1,594 issues traded, 688 advanced while 661 declined. There were 52 new highs for the year and 53 new lows.

Blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 89, compared with 63 Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, up 1.4 at noon, closed at 338.6, up .2.

Lockheed Aircraft led the active list on the Big Board, as 12 of the 20 most active advanced, and 8 declined.

Lockheed, most active largely on two blocks totaling 316,400 shares, was off 1 1/2 at 28 1/2. The Army has canceled a helicopter contract with the company.

Turnover on the American Stock Exchange rose to 6.77 million shares, compared with 6.01 million Wednesday. The Amex index gained 2 cents to $31.12.

Eleven of the 20 most active Amex issues advanced, 7 declined, and 2 were unchanged.

Oil held a number of the most active spots, with British Petroleum heading the list.

Sales Tax To Be Explained To Forest Representatives

Area forest industry representatives will have an opportunity to learn first-hand the exemptions and provisions existing for logging and sawmill operations under Pennsylvania's Sales and Use Tax.

Harry G. Banzhoff, Chief of the Legal Division, Pennsylvania Dept. of Revenue's Bureau of Taxes for Education, will be the featured speaker of a regional forest industry meeting to be held Tuesday evening, May 27, at the Ridgeway First Lutheran Church social hall, at 8:00 o'clock.

Mr. Banzhoff, in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service of The Pennsylvania State University, has already participated in four previous such meetings in eastern and central Pennsylvania.

In addition to explaining the application and exemptions of Pennsylvania's 6 percent sales and use tax legislation to logging and sawmill businesses, Banzhoff will describe procedures for obtaining refunding of unnecessarily paid tax monies. A question and answer period to clarify individual and unique tax and manufacturing situations will also be handled by Mr. Banzhoff.

Additional information concerning this meeting, sponsored by The Cooperative Extension Service may be obtained from County Agent, Bernice Wingert, or Roe S. Cochran, Area Forest Industry Agent, Courthouse, Ridgeway, Penna. 15853.

SOME THINGS PEOPLE SAY ABOUT OUR 31 YEARS OF PUBLIC SERVICE

"As a physician, my prime concern is the welfare of people and their health care needs. As one who has practiced in Western Pennsylvania for many years, I have seen firsthand the many changes Blue Cross has produced. I have seen how the financial burden of illness has been removed for so many, and how this has motivated people to seek needed care earlier. What Blue Cross has accomplished in 31 years is, in my judgment, community service of the highest order."

J. Everett McClenahan, M.D.
Surgeon
Past President, Allegheny County Medical Society
Past President, Pennsylvania Medical Society

"Back when Blue Cross began, both patients and hospitals were in desperate need of a solution to their health care financing problems. We in hospitals were faced with a great free care load which threatened our existence. Even worse, there were very many people neglecting their health care needs because they couldn't pay for the care. Over the 31 years that Blue Cross has served the people of Western Pennsylvania, I have seen the great good that has been accomplished — the lives saved, the health restored, and the deep satisfaction of people who were able through this plan to be self-sufficient in times of illness or injury."

Sister M. Adele
Executive Director
St. Francis General Hospital
Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I can remember how interested and excited people were back in 1938 when Blue Cross of Western Pennsylvania came into being, and I joined at the first opportunity. It gave me a deep feeling of security to know that my hospital bills would be covered if I needed hospital care. I still have that feeling. As far as I'm concerned, it's just something that a person can't be without."

Post Office Conducting Farm Survey

Farmers in the Warren area are being asked to supply pertinent information about livestock in a survey now underway, Postmaster Frank A. Fago announced Thursday.

Cards are being delivered to farm mail boxes, selected at random on rural routes served by the Warren Post Office.

These semi-annual surveys are conducted cooperatively each year by the Post Office and Agriculture Departments and serve as a basis for estimating numbers of livestock on farms; livestock production; the size of the pig, calf, lamb and wool crops; and the number of chickens raised. This information is of considerable importance to farmers, the livestock industry, industries serving agriculture, public agencies and the general public.

Farmers receiving survey cards have been urged to fill them out and return them promptly to mail carriers, Postmaster Fago said.

MORE CLAIMS PAID THAN EVER BEFORE

In 1968, Blue Cross paid a record high of $117,738,391 in health care for subscribers. Blue Cross also paid a new high of 816,650 subscriber claims for hospital care, up 6% over 1967. The Plan covered subscriber claims representing nearly two million days of patient care. These claims were covered in full in more than nine out of every ten cases.

Subscription fees paid to Blue Cross in 1968 exceeded $126,500,000. We returned nearly $118 million to subscribers in health care benefits, or People like Mr. McManamon, Sister Adele, and Dr. McClenahan have known Blue Cross and watched its performance since 1938 when this community service began.

Mr. McManamon has used his Blue Cross coverage but little during these 31 years, but he knows the protection will be there whenever he needs it. So do more than two million other people in Western Pennsylvania who are protected by Blue Cross.

Each year, new records of service have been established. Here's a report for Western Pennsylvanians on Blue Cross activities in 1968.

BROADER PROTECTION, BETTER SERVICE

Early in 1968, we added our extended coverage for subscribers with disabled sons and daughters incapable of self-support. Now, handicapped sons and daughters, age 19 or older, continue to be covered under parents' agreements at no extra cost.

Blue Cross again served as intermediary for nearly 93 cents on the dollar. Operating expenses remained low, requiring less than five cents on the dollar. Two cents were allocated to reserves. This addition to the reserve reversed a four-year decline, thus beginning a gradual rebuilding that is essential for sound business operation and assured protection for subscribers.

General inflationary pressures, more equitable salary structures, new facilities and equipment caused hospital rates to increase by 16% in 1968. Despite these increases, Western Pennsylvania hospital costs rank well below the national average. This reflects, in part, the results of cost-and-usage control activities in which Blue Cross, hospitals, and doctors are involved.

Operational efficiency increased substantially in 1968. Expanded use of computers has cut processing time for subscriber group information by 50%. It also results in more accurate accounting and statistical data delivery. In addition, new budgetary and cost control concepts were developed.

These are some of the accomplishments which Blue Cross was able to effect in 1968. If you'd like a copy of the Blue Cross annual report, it's yours for the asking. Write today.

Dragons Steal, Sock 9-2 Victory

Warren High's bats erratically available this season, beat out seven hits and the suddenly fleet-footed Dragons worked seven steals to secure their third win of the season, a 9-2 verdict over Olean Bishop Walsh, at Memorial Field on Thursday.

Getting the lone extra base hit for the Dragons was Jim Monaghan, who pounded out a double in the fourth inning to drive home Warren's fifth run. He, Larry Hagg and Robbie Morrison each pilfered a pair of bases, while Jim Mock added a single steal in the rout.

The Dragons benefited from eight walks, while lefty John Belleau yielded but two hits while going the route.

Warren opened up with a pair of runs in the second, matched it in the third, and again in the fourth, before Olean could muster its lone two tallies in the fifth.

The Dragons jaunt to Jamestown this Saturday and conclude the season at home Monday against Fort Le Boeuf.

Andretti Nears 170 At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, his face still blistered from a fiery wreck Wednesday, returned to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Thursday in another car and immediately began running with the fastest drivers.

The little Italian-born racer turned laps at more than 169 miles an hour in the Hawk Ford with which he won the U.S. Auto Club championship race at Hanford, Calif., April 13.

"It's hard to tell whether the Hawk has the potential of the Lotus," he said. "The Hawk is lighter and has only two-wheel drive to the Lotus' four-wheel drive."

"We have a spare Lotus, but it's four days away from being ready to run, and there's no chance to use it," he said.

Andretti had been up to 171.789 m.p.h. in the new Lotus Ford which was demolished Wednesday. The car threw its right rear wheel and skidded against a wall at high speed, then broke into flames.

Only 10 drivers have been over 168 m.p.h. in practice for this weekend's time trials to pick 33 starters for the 53rd 500 mile race May 30.

Girls Hold Track Meet; Ike Lassies Take First

For the first time in the history of the Warren County School system, the girls held a county triangular track meet. The participants included Eisenhower, Sheffield and Warren. Ike's lassies were by far superior on the cinders and field, as they rolled up 101 points, in comparison to Warren's 54 and Sheffield's 4.

Out of 14 events, Eisenhower swept nine firsts, while Warren gathered in the remaining five. The victors held the edge over the other two schools in the field by taking five of the six events.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Erickson Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Hitters' Field Day In Rec League

By DAVE PIRILLO
After only two games in Rec League play, it's too early to notice a trend in the winner's category, however; it looks like the old standbys—Warren Sub Shop and City Ice are going to make another fight for the title.

The Sub Shop came up with a host of runs between the first and final frames to sandwich Penn Highlands, 19-0 on a one-hitter by Don Baldensperger. Meanwhile, on Memorial Field City Ice was wrapping up an 8-1 package with the Montgomery Ward Retailers for its second victory in as many attempts. In other games around the circuit, Sheffield outlasted Surf Club, 9-6; Devore's hammered G.G. Greene's Machinists, 15-2.

Larry Bearfield had to be the most instrumental asset in destroying Penn Highlands. Bearfield did it all for the winners as he knocked in six runs with a single, double, triple and homer. The Sub Shop exploded for five runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and four each in the fifth and sixth, to make it a no contest game. Glenn Cook's single was the only base knock for Penn Highlands.

The Iceman drove in four runs in the opening inning and with the three-hit pitching of Charlie Pettit, found it easy sledding against Montgomery Wards. Bill Slocum swung the lumber for City Ice in connecting for a pair of triples off of losing hurler Doug Baldensperger.

No other popular pickup goes to the lengths Chevy does to save you money.

Several lengths, in fact. Like: offering pickup boxes that range in length from six-and-one-half feet to a king-size nine-footer.

No matter what size you prefer, you're going to get a full measure of Chevy's Pacesetter Value with each model. For instance: the biggest power choice among popular pickups. Six or V8. Including a hill-climbing 350-cu.-in. V8.

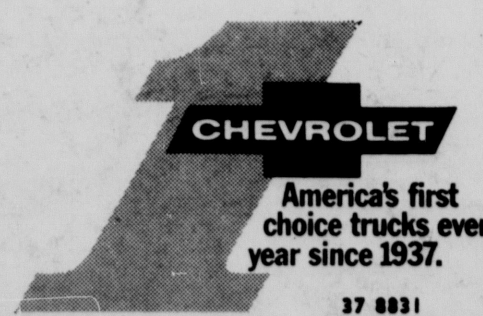

You're also going to get the smoothest ride this side of a passenger car. Thanks to an all-steel independent front suspension that refuses to acknowledge bumps.

Inside the double-steel cabs, you're going to find such Pacesetter Values as thick foam seats. Which provide stretch-out room for three. And you'll discover that safety features surround you like a security blanket: four-way flashers, seat belts, dual braking system, padded sun visors and more.

Besides all the built-in Pacesetter Values, there's plenty you can order. Everything from power steering to chrome wheel covers.

Wrap it all up in a small price and it becomes pretty clear: Chevy will go to great lengths to please you.

Child Welfare Program Explained

The workings of the Warren County Child Welfare Board were explained by its chairman, the Rev. James Dorow to his fellow members of the Youngsville Kiwanis Club at their meeting on Tuesday. The Board is an advisory agency for the county commissioners, who are responsible for the care of dependent and neglected children.

Most children currently being referred to the Board are being placed in foster homes throughout the county, said Pastor Dorow. The new center being readied on Conewango avenue, Warren for June occupancy, will be rated as a foster home rather than as an institution. It will replace the Hoffman Home, which does not meet State requirements for a public institution, and would be too costly to remodel.

The club will meet next Tuesday at the home of Gurney Ball, Marsh avenue, Youngsville.

Legion Essay Winners

June Allen was a double first place winner in the American Legion's annual essay contest on Americanism. She won first prize in the local contest and first in the Elk-Forest-Warren-McKean County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Wayne McNeal was second in the local contest and Carla Ellberg third.

Mary Beth Ryan is the winner of the American Legion Auxiliary Citizenship Award which is presented to the student who is outstanding in Scholarship, Honor, Courage, Leadership, Service and Americanism. The award is a certificate and pin.

The American Legion presented the medal to Thomas Bright for the same qualities. June Allen received two checks, Carla Ellberg and Wayne McNeal received one check.

Sam Marek, vocational-technical director and Barry Epstein, executive vice president of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce and executive director of the Warren County Development Association are finalizing arrangements with Harold Albright, Venango County vo-tech director and chairman of the local groups, including John Haggerty, Gary Shepherd, Curt Sasserson and Andrew Donick.

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — Sheridan Jaycees were threatening to call off the snowmobile race scheduled in the Big Horn mountains west of Sheridan. High winds had blown most of the snow off the course.

But the Crow Indian tribe tried a rain dance for five hours.

Six inches of snow fell quickly -- in fact there was so much snow that the snowmobile race was threatened by too much snow.

The Indians explained they didn't have a dance to turn off the precipitation.

Unity Dominant Theme in Red China

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
HONG KONG — Unity has become a dominant theme of press commentaries throughout Communist China, signalling a major effort by the Maoist victors of the Cultural Revolution to heal the national wounds inflicted in three years of factional turmoil.

The recent Communist Party Congress formally acclaimed Chairman Mao Tse-Tung and his chosen heir Defense Minister Lin Biao as the supreme leaders of China and officially sealed the fate of their political opponents. The subsequent reshuffling of the political bureau concentrated power in the hands of persons of proven loyalty to Mao and Lin.

With these fruits of victory in their grasp, the Maoists have launched a unity drive aimed at making friends of erstwhile enemies, or at least of the 90 per cent who are "not necessarily bad people".

The relative blandness of the published Congress documents, which avoided inflexible positions on questions of future policy, seen in the context of the unity drive suggests that it was launched at the party gathering. Unity may have been a consideration in the low-key publicity given to the confirmation of the Maoist hierarchy in positions of strong political power.

Peking continues to publish the new political bureau in order of the number of strokes in the members' surnames so that the top-ranking position of Chiang Ching, Mao's wife, and the rise to power of other close associates of the party chairman is not overemphasized.

A special effort was directed this week at unifying the armed forces, which underwent their share of purges during the Cultural Revolution. Mao and Lin held a reception for 10,000 "revolutionary fighters" representing the armed forces.

Three former marshals of the army, who had been dropped from the political bureau, were identified as vice-chairmen of the Central Committee's Military Commission. The commission in the past has exerted significant political control over the armed forces.

The emergence of the three men, Chen Yi, Hsu Hsiang-Chien and Nieh Jung-Chen, in positions of significant military influence despite their political downgrading was interpreted here as a bid to rally behind the Mao-Lin leadership the substantial following former marshals are still believed to command within the armed forces. Hsinhua, the official press agency reported that the Peking reception had been acclaimed by "hundreds of millions" of soldiers and civilians who had pledged to "unite all the forces that can be united".

Throughout the country provincial papers have carried editorials with a unity theme. The editorials appeared to be directed at factional interests that do not favor making peace with former enemies from the split in the cultural revolution, which divided China into warring factions and left enduring bitterness among many groups.

Japanese Growing Taller And Larger Every Year

TOKYO (AP) — Average Japanese bigger than average Americans?

It could happen some day, says one Japanese scientist. Meanwhile, Japanese children are outgrowing their school desks, and houses may have to be remodeled with higher ceilings and doorways.

The Japanese are growing markedly taller and heavier each year, apparently because of a switch from traditional Japanese dishes based on rice to Western-type diets composed of more fat and dairy products.

A Japanese nutrition specialist said: "The difference of height between an average American and Japanese will be gradually reduced."

"It may be in the not so distant future the Japanese will possibly surpass the Americans in their physical measurements," said Dr. Shinkichi Nagamine of the National Institute of Nutrition, run by the Ministry of Health and Welfare.

The average American stands 5-feet 9½ inches, about 3.9 inches taller than the average Japanese.

Nagamine said the dietary change as well as the sharp rise in Japanese living standards undoubtedly have contributed to the remarkable physical growth in post war Japan.

The impressive physical changes are particularly remarkable in younger generations.

In primary and junior high schools, children have outgrown their desks and chairs, officials at the Ministry of Education reported, and the ministry had to revise standards for classroom furniture.

A ministry survey showed the average height of 11-year old boys has increased by 4.6 inches over the past 68 years.

Girls of the same age had an increase 5.4 inches.

During the 1900-1968 period, the 11-year old boys gained 13.6 pounds and the girls 18.9 pounds in weight, the survey said.

For 14-year-old boys the average increase in height was 4.95 inches during the same period.

Officials said the growth rate was especially bigger in the last two decades, during which most of the deprivations of World War II had been ameliorated or eliminated completely.

"Today," they said, "it is common for 14 or 15 year-old children to be taller than their parents."

Officials said rice is called a staple food for 1.8 billion people in Asia, but in Japan more people are eating or drinking such foods as bread, butter, cornflakes, eggs, meat and milk.

"It's not too much to say that almost every Japanese home has no rice on the breakfast menu today," they stated.

The tendency for younger Japanese to prefer no-rice diets could be attributed partly to a school lunch system adopted in 1947.

The school lunches are served at primary schools throughout this country. They began with powdered milk, flour and canned foods released by the allied occupation forces to save the hungry children in defeated Japan from malnutrition.

The school lunch menu still is based on bread and milk—and no rice.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Henry and Henrietta are at it again!

The Brysons — husband and wife—are once more opponents for the big neighborhood job of judge of elections.

Hank, a 46-year-old Republican who is an electronics research technician for RCA in nearby Princeton, N.J., won by a slim margin four years ago—knocking out his wife's bid for a fourth term.

Henrietta, called "Hankie" by friends, is a Democrat and determined to make a comeback this November in the 26th division of Northeast Philadelphia's 45th ward. Both were unopposed for their party's nomination in the primary.

It's not the best paying job—only $50 a year—but . . . "We both like people," explains Mrs. Bryson. "We both like the job. And each of us wants to be the judge."

Mrs. Bryson, an insurance company clerk, hasn't been too far away from the polling place on election day despite her defeat. Hank named her a voting machine watcher—and she promised to give him a similar post if she wins in the fall.

Before that, though, they celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary in June, and plan a second honeymoon in Florida.

It's still love, love love . . . despite politics.

Oil Pipeline Ruptures In Branch of Tionesta

By FRANKLIN R. HOFF

Some time after noon Saturday, May 17, scores of fishermen trying their luck for trout in the South Branch of the Tionesta, beyond Barnes, were suddenly driven out by the sudden appearance of a blanket of heavy oil coming downstream. "That oil was blacker than Sam Hill!" reports Howard Morrison.

What had happened was a break in the Buckeye Pipe Line at Brookston, where it crosses Bogus Run, which flows into the South Branch of the Tionesta in Sheffield Township, Warren County.

Upon learning of the break, Buckeye officials immediately went into action to repair the line. Also near Barnes two sweeps were laid across the stream, in hopes of salvaging some of the oil, and preventing pollution from going on down to the Tionesta Dam.

High water soon floated the oil over the sweeps, and when the water level receded Tuesday, a band of black thick Western crude oil lined both banks. The incident is being investigated jointly by Joe Kopena, of the Tionesta office of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, and Jack Crick, pollution control specialist from the Meadville office of the Pennsylvania Department of Health. The Fish Commission takes measures for prosecution while the Department of Health is concerned with the cleaning up of oil along streams where pollution occurs.

Kopena reports that, fortunately, the high water carried the oil along, clear to the Tionesta Dam, and consequently there did not appear to have been any fish killed, although this will be thoroughly investigated.

Kopena says a meeting is being held this morning, Friday, May 23, at his offices in Tionesta with the Buckeye Pipeline representatives, the Fish Commission and the Department of Health. The U.S. Forest Service will also be represented. George Jones, Warren County fish warden at Tidioute, also investigated the pollution in Sheffield Township.

Frank Rudolph, of Barnes, president of the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce, expresses grave concern over this oil pollution, because of its effect on fishing in the trout streams, not only during the immediate season, but literally over several years.

Rudolph recalls that two years ago the Buckeye Pipeline broke on Bogus Run, pouring a large quantity of oil into the South Branch at that time. Three months ago, he reports, a break occurred in the National Transit Company pipeline, throwing some 12,000 gallons of oil into the South Branch. Rudolph believes there is evidence this and other breaks are caused by failure of old pipelines unequal to pressures of present-day long-distance pumping.

"I think it is ridiculous," declares Rudolph, "that these pipe line breaks have been occurring repeatedly, yet the oil companies seem never to be accountable for trying to prevent it. Pipeline common carriers should be compelled to take necessary steps to prevent such pollution. After a break occurs it is too late, because it takes several years for a stream to recover."

The streams affected run through the Allegheny National Forest lands and Forest Supervisor Ralph Freeman is investigating what steps the U.S. Forest Service may take toward prevention of future oil pollution from pipe line breaks.

As explained by Elmer Slack, Junior, deputy game warden, who also surveyed the situation, not only does dumping of oil into the stream kill off the fish inhabiting it, but the effects are tragically long-range, because, for all practical purposes, the result is a dead stream for several years.

Slack also observes that oil spills not only destroy fish, but cause the death of many muskrat and beaver. Also affected are mink, racoon and other fur-bearing animals, who subsist in part on fish and other marine life, and whole pelts suffer in quality when their environment is altered in this way.

Slack explains the frustration of sportsmen and other Sheffield Township citizens over these repeated incidents of oil pollution. "A year ago," he recalls, "the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce, supported by the Rod and Gun Club, planned to promote a year-around 'Fishing-for-Fun' area in or around Sheffield, not only for tourists, but for the pleasure of local citizens who live here where they enjoy such wonderful fishing and hunting." This, he says is also important to the local economy, as hundreds of fishermen are attracted to the area. Finally an appropriate place was found - along the South Branch of the Tionesta from the Forest County line near Brookston for a distance of about three miles. The stream flows through Allegheny National Forest land, which prevents disturbance to private land owners. Also, the South Branch is located near the Cherry Run picnic and camping area of the Allegheny National Forest.

State Educators Differ Over Defeat of School Bond Issue

HARRISBURG (AP) — Education officials differed Thursday on whether the defeat of Philadelphia's school bond issue was a vote against local policies or part of a national taxpayers' revolt.

"I think it is more of a local problem," said Frank Sullivan, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers.

"It was a reaction against spending brought about by the squeeze of inflation," commented John C. Snyder, president of the Pennsylvania School Boards Association.

Philadelphia voters turned down the $90 million school bond question by a vote of 112,221 to 88,265. The money would

County's Relief Recipients Receive $45,576

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — Warren County's 582 residents drawing relief during the month of February received a total of $45,576 in public assistance grants, the State Department of Public Welfare reported yesterday.

A breakdown of this relief expenditure shows that $16,195 was paid out to 146 old age assistance recipients, $2094 went to 26 persons receiving state blind pensions, $3426 to 24 receiving aid to dependent children assistance, $1555 to 20 receiving general assistance, and $5577 to 36 persons in the county receiving aid to disabled assistance.

In addition to the cash grants, payments to Warren County medical institutions and to individuals in the healing arts professions for care of needy persons—many of them not on relief—totaled $145,595 during February.

With administration costs of $5904 for the County Board of Assistance, the Warren County expenditures of public assistance funds reached $197,075 for the month.

have been used for school construction, which now faces "drastic cutbacks" according to Richardson Dilworth, Philadelphia School Board president.

"I don't think it was really a vote against school building," said Sullivan, whose organization supported the referendum. "It was a deep dissatisfaction with some of the policies of school administrators and the school board. There's a strong feeling in the community that school administrators are trying to make over the school system in the name of innovation."

Sullivan added he did not think there were racial overtones to the vote. Dr. David H. Kurtzman, state superintendent of public instruction, agreed it was a local problem but thought that the racial issue played a part.

"I think it was a very unfortunate thing for education, but I don't think it's a state wide pattern," Kurtzman said. "I think it was a general resentment against the cross-town busing proposal, a white backlash. But it was limited to the Philadelphia political situation."

The proposal Kurtzman referred to would have bused white and Negro pupils to a third area where they would learn together for a limited period each week. Parents in some white neighborhoods protested and the plan never was implemented.

An analysis of the school bond vote showed that voters in

Mayor Conaway Proclaims Hearing Month

Mayor D. E. Conaway met with Warren representatives of the International Parents Organization for Deaf Children in his office on Thursday to discuss their plans for Better Hearing Month. The organization is affiliated with the Alexander Graham Bell Association.

The parents of southwestern New York and northwestern Pennsylvania chapters will hold an open house at the WCA Hospital, Department of Speech and Hearing, Jamestown, from 2 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 25, to culminate their activities during Better Hearing Month.

Mrs. Ed Carr, Mrs. Joseph Muscaro and Mrs. James Graziano, all of Warren, told Mayor Conaway that their chapter is seeking support in obtaining better facilities and services for the deaf and hard of hearing youngsters in this area.

These ladies said they must now transport their children, Tom, Jon and Johnny, all age 4, to the hospital at Jamestown each day because this is the only facility where their youngsters can receive the necessary training to help them continue their development as useful citizens. Although they are deaf, these children are normal in every other respect; yet, they must be trained under the proper circumstances and by properly trained technicians using special equipment, the mothers said.

The public is invited to attend the open house at Jamestown that they may see the work that is being done for these handicapped children.

Identity of Curtis Publishing Co. Paper Mill Buyer Secret

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The paper mill Curtis Publishing Co. owns at Johnsonburg, Elk County, Pa., is going to be sold — but the buyer's identity is being kept secret until new directors are elected late Friday. President Philip P. Kalodner told stockholders at the annual meeting Wednesday he had made "a handshake deal" to sell both the paper mill and the printing plant at Sharon Hill, Pa.

Pressed by stockholder Evelyn Y. Davis of New York as to "Who and how much?" Kalodner replied:

"No agreement has been signed, and no commitments have been made. The proposal must first be presented to the new directors for their approval. To do anything else would be improper and probably would jeopardize these informal arrangements."

Kalodner is a Philadelphia attorney who took over last month as chief executive of the financially-troubled and controversially-ridden firm which once was America's biggest magazine publisher. He sought to maintain control with a slate of directors of his own but couldn't muster more than 25 per cent of the total 4.1 million shares of common and preferred stock.

An opposition slate, claiming more than 50 per cent of the stock, is expected to get 9 of the 11 seats on the board when the annual meeting is reconvened Friday afternoon. One of the minority spots, and perhaps the only one, likely will go to Kalodner.

Kalodner said there is "an urgent need" to dispose of the paper mill and printing plant be

State Offices Will Observe Holiday

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG — State government offices would observe any legal holiday falling on Saturday on the preceding Friday should legislation sponsored by Senator Richard C. Frame of Franklin, whose senatorial district embraces Warren County, be enacted into law.

All state government administrative offices would be closed on the designated day for observance of the holiday, according to provisions of the Frame legislative measure.

It was stipulated that the legislation become effective immediately upon final approval, should it be enacted into law. The measure was referred to the State Government Committee of the Senate.

cause "they were long neglected and now antiquated."

He has estimated that the total assets of Curtis would ring around $20 million if the company were liquidated — which he accuses the controlling stockholder-directors plan to do.

"If this happens," Kalodner said, "common stockholders would get nothing after proceeds are given to the bond holders and to preferred holders."

Thomas Moses, a former Minneapolis banker slated to become board chairman and chief executive officer, replied, "It is our intention to stay in business. I have never been a liquidator. I am not coming in to be a liquidator."

Moses said it will be his intention—supported by Arthur R.

Murphy, Jr. as the new president—to try to move Curtis into other businesses besides mass communications.

Kalodner has said that "the magazine business is the best of all possible businesses and Curtis should get back in."

"It is a gamble, a risk, a substantial risk, but I see no other alternatives," said Kalodner in appealing for majority stockholder support.

Curtis has been immersed in gallons of red ink since 1962 when its magazine queen, the Saturday Evening Post, starting losing money due to heavy advertising shrinkage. The Post ended publication last February which—combined with a series of lawsuits—ended the presidency of Martin Ackerman. Kalodner, one of the principals in Ackerman's departure, eventually took over.

Teacher Walkouts Hit Western Pennsylvania

PITTSBURGH (AP) — More than 30,000 children were out of school Thursday as a new wave of teacher walkouts hit Western Pennsylvania.

Teachers walked out of the Fox Chapel and Shaler Township school districts in suburban Pittsburgh and the Shade-Central school district in Somerset County.

Classes were also boycotted by teachers at the Freedom school district in Beaver County.

The first-day walkouts were prompted either by salary and fringe benefit demands or the refusal of school boards to negotiate.

Teacher strikes continued in New Castle in Lawrence County, the Elizabeth Forward system near McKeesport, and the Ringgold district in Washington County.

But a five day strike by 375 teachers in Connellsville Area schools in Fayette County ended when the school board agreed to a $6,300 minimum starting salary and other fringe benefits. About 8,900 children had been kept away from classes, which were set to resume Friday.

Last week, Dr. David H. Kurtzman, state superintendent of public instruction, blamed the recent rash of teacher strikes on the failure of the new teacher salary bill to satisfy demands. The legislation raised minimum teacher salaries to $6,000.

"I hoped that it would cut down on the unlawful strikes," Kurtzman told The Associated Press in an interview.

However, all of the teacher groups which have walked out have demand salary increases in excess of the $6,000 minimum.

Kurtzman also laid part of the blame on the school boards. "It may be that in some areas strikes would not have occurred if the school board had acted in a different way," he said.

The 310 members of the Fox Chapel Education Association said they decided to strike after a mediation session with the school board ended without settlement.

The Shaler Township Teachers Education Association members, about 120 of them, stayed away from classes in a demand for more money. Shaler Township and Fox Chapel adjoint each other geographically.

The Shade Education Association members are demanding salary increases and improved fringe benefits.

Meanwhile, the Western Beaver school board and the Western Beaver Education Association announced they'd reached agreement on a minimum starting salary of $6,400 and fringe benefits.

The 83 teachers in the Beaver County teachers group walked out for one day last week. They went back when the board said it would negotiate.

REFLECTIONS

By Betty Rice

Many remark how beautiful and bountiful are the flowering shrubs in Warren County this spring. The lilacs are lush and fruit trees give every indication of a rich and abundant crop later on. But there is nothing lovelier than the dogwood trees as this closeup by Mel Mansfield shows. A long time ago our friend Jo Knoll gave us a copy of "The Legend of the Dogwood" and we bet she'll be surprised to know we still had it.

"Long ago the Dogwood
Was a tall and stately tree
A monarch of the forest
That stood majestically --
Then one day men in search of wood
The sturdy Dogwood spied
And from its trunk they hewed the cross
On which our Saviour died --
And as our Saviour's precious blood
Fell softly to the ground
The tree was filled with sorrow
But could utter not a sound.
Our Saviour knew and whispered
In his tender, loving voice
'You are part of man's salvation
In this you can rejoice --
Henceforth you'll bear a crown of thorns
Within each lovely flower
And a nailpoint on each petal
Will recall this dreadful hour --
Forever you'll be gnarled and bent
Of no more use to men,
But each Springtime you'll remind the world
Christ died and lives again.' "

Belated best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer D. James of 210 Orchard street, Warren, who quietly and without fanfare observed their 57th wedding anniversary Sunday, May 18, 1969.

After all the trials, trouble and turmoil of urban renewal in downtown Warren, Isabelle's Specialty Shoppe is relocated and open for business today. And entering the shop is like a breath of fresh air -- it's that dainty and delightful. The exterior has been painted a crisp white with the display backed with lattice work. Inside walls are softly paneled and the wall to wall carpeting in tones of blue and green adds just the right touch of color. And as before Isabelle continues to feature exquisite costume jewelry, loungewear that's bright and gay and filmy lingerie. There are many dainty gift items. But why not see for yourself. The new address is 307 Hickory street across from the stately municipal building.

United In Marriage

First United Methodist Church of Youngsville was the scene at 7 p. m., Saturday, May 17, 1969 of the wedding of Kathleen Marie Hendrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Hendrickson, 309 East Main street, Youngsville and Lance Cpl. Richard L. Wilcox, U.S.M.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Wilcox, 22 Fourth street, Youngsville, Pa.

The double ring ceremony was performed by candlelight by the Rev. Lyston Knappenberger. Mrs. Victor Schnell was organist and Donald B. Aberg, the vocal soloist. Acolytes were Jack Aberg and Scott Haight of Youngsville.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a princess seamed gown of ivory silk peau d'oeil designed with deep inverted pleats which formed the gracefulness in the skirt and the chapel sweep train. The molded empire bodice and long fitted sleeves were appliqued with reemboiled Alencon lace etched with baroque pearls and crystal. Crystal pleated Alencon lace formed the standup ruffle collar and lace coachman cuffs.

Her voluminous veil was of English pure silk illusion in Harem style and was caught to a bonnet of reemboiled Alencon lace sprinkled with baroque pearls and crystal accented with a peau d'oeil bow. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and white miniature carnations.

Mrs. Gordon Wilcox Jr. of Warren, a sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and was gowned in an apricot Saki floor length skimmer. Tangerine braid accented the standup collar and sleeves and outlined the train effect in the back which was centered with a row of tangerine satin buttons. Her headpiece was a matching Dior bow with butterfly veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of tangerine carnations and junior miss sweetheart roses. Miss Jeanne Natale of Youngsville was maid of honor and was gowned the same as the matron of honor.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some new friends invited us over for an evening of bridge. When we arrived at 7:30 we were asked if we'd like to hear their 12-year-old play her piano recital piece. Of course we politely said "yes." The "piece" turned out to be three pieces and my husband was visibly annoyed.

After the piano recital we were told that the younger boy wanted to do something to entertain us, also. So we sat and listened to him name the fifty states, "Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California. . ." Then came the Gettysburg address—"Four score and seven years ago. . ." Next he named all the cabinet members and their posts—"Mr. William Rogers, Secretary of State; Mr. Melvin Laird, Secretary of Defense; Mr. David Kennedy, Secretary of the Treasury. . ."

Then the 6-year-old came in wearing toe slippers and a fairy costume. Her mother played the piano while she danced for what seemed like forever.

At 8:30 they finally brought out the cards. By that time my husband was so out-of-sorts he played a terrible game and his disposition was foul. When we got home he told me never to accept another invitation from those people. He ordered me not to ask them to our place ever again. I like the woman very much, Ann. What should I do?—TRUMPED ACE

Dear Ace: See the woman during the afternoon. A husband has the right to veto couples he does not enjoy. (So does a wife)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to you because it is easier to write about an embarrassing problem than to talk to a person face to face.

I am a 16-year-old girl who is considered attractive, good company and I guess you'd call me popular. That's my problem. I'm too popular. The word has gotten around that I'm a push-over and it's true. I just can't say no. The result is that I end up sleeping with every boy on the very first date.

The weird part is I don't get anything out of it. And it seems to be getting worse. I got a bigger thrill out of being kissed in the swimming pool when I was 14 than I got from going to bed with the captain of the soccer team last night.

Is there something wrong with me? My best friend says this is not normal and I need professional help. If you say she is right I'll tell Mom I am having tension headaches and I want to go for counseling. Please advise.—YES GIRL

Dear Girl: Your friend is right. I urge you to get help at once. Promiscuity can be highly dangerous, not only physically but emotionally. Get going and good luck.

The bidding:

1NT Pass 2♦ 2♥
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.
By taking an inventory of his opponent's assets, South uncovered the rather unnatural play required to bring home his two heart contract.

East displayed an excessive streak of timidity during the auction. Although his holding contains only four high card points, the distribution is attractive and rates to produce several tricks opposite partner's no trump bid. East should be extremely reluctant to sell out so cheaply to the opposition. Observe that East and West can score 10 tricks at diamonds.

West opened the king of spades and East signaled with the queen, which—according to convention—commands partner to underlead the ace on the next round. It is obvious that this play should not be made unless the player has the jack as well. West dutifully continued with a small spade and East won the trick with the jack.

The shift was to a diamond and West covered declarer's queen with the ace. The latter cashed the ace of spades and exited with a diamond. South was in with the king, and he proceeded to draw trumps in three rounds, ending up in his hand.

The fate of the contract now hinged on how declarer handled the clubs, for he must restrict his loss to one trick in that suit. The normal procedure would be to lead out to the dummy's queen with the intention of finessing the ten on the return, hoping that East held the jack of clubs.

East, however, had already shown up with four points in spades and diamonds, and West appeared to be marked with all of the remaining high cards—including the jack of clubs—to account for the 16 points indicated by an opening one no trump. South accordingly decided to make a somewhat unnatural play in clubs.

He led the king from his hand to drive out West's ace. In order to avoid giving declarer a ruff and discard, West returned a small club. South ducked the lead around to his ten which won the trick, enabling him to claim his contract.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars For Friday, MAY 23, 1969

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—If you attempt what you are not supposed to, or are not qualified to handle, you should realize what the results will be. A word to the wise...!

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—You may delay the start of a heavy or taxing matter, then wind up rushing, having to put too many hours at a stretch into its completion. Scotch any such tendency as well as other tension-builders.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—If it will help to clear up a situation in sensible fashion, don't turn down any feasible suggestion. But discriminate between the astute and the rash.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Use all of your innate judiciousness in putting forward original ideas, in trying to remedy unsatisfactory methods. You are in a position to lead, or put telling weight behind a leader.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Planetary influences suggest that you emphasize serenity, minutely careful thought before action, and a willingness to heed the suggestions of others.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Mercury, favorable, now stimulates keen and quick thinking; generates inspiring ideas which could be of great benefit to organizations or to your community.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Gentle persuasion will reap better results than strident, demanding tones or methods. Be patient with delays. Progress is in the making.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—It is difficult for you to contain yourself at times, but this is one of the days you MUST. Otherwise, mix-ups and misunderstandings will ensue.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Not much planetary help here, but get a nearly start and work as ambitiously as usual and you should have a satisfactory day. Just one admonition: Don't let "bossiness" enter into your dealings with others.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Free moments may cause more difficulty than working ones. Determine upon arising to do your finest (and that's considerable) and you will make big strides.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Don't wait for another's decision if you have the answer, but DO profit by the advice and experience of others. These, coupled with your own know-how, can lead to fine achievement.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—A slow-down may be needed, to re-group ideas, study matters further. Do not be so independent that you find yourself out on a precarious limb, unsteady, alone, and without cause. YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many fine gifts—notably unusual creative ability, lofty ambitions, a remarkable memory and a keen sense of perception. Gemini are somewhat unorthodox in behavior, yet will carry out responsibilities to the letter—their own "letter", perhaps but all jobs will be well done. They especially make fine writers, painters, musicians and journalists. Birthdate of: Prof. Carolus Linnaeus, Swedish botanist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

RETIREMENT VILLAGES

It has been said that most older people prefer not to move in with their children. Studies have shown that they stay healthier and live longer if they remain in their own homes. Our modern retirement hotels and special apartments for the elderly are geared to their special needs.

What about the retirement communities that are cropping up in Florida and the southwest? Reports indicate that these complexes meet the needs of senior citizens, in that 90 per cent of the residents are reasonably satisfied. Seventy per cent are happier or as happy as they were before reaching old age or retirement. Only 2 per cent turned thumbs down on the entire idea.

Retirement villages were selected for discussion because it means that the senior citizen must make a complete break with family, friends and familiar surroundings. These communities offer the advantage of moving to something, rather than from something. The majority do not regard themselves as decrepit and do not fear growing old. They have the personality, health, and finances to enjoy the facilities offered by a well planned retirement community. There is a place for persons from all walks of life and each seems to attract men and women of similar schooling and income.

The woman keeps house and the man putters about the garden. Reading is a popular diversion and so are radio and television. The men like to fish or play shuffleboard; the women love to gab, as always. These oldersters do not go for planned or rigid educational programs; they like their independence and do not want to be organized into Boy or Girl Scout troops.

Forty per cent attend church services regularly. Another 20 per cent attend at least once a month; women are more dutiful along this line. Ten per cent have part time jobs. Although many retired because of illness, 75 per cent say their health is so good, they need little medical care.

TOMORROW: Ulcer Therapy Today.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

INFECTIVE AGENTS

A reader writes: What is the difference between viruses and bacteria?

REPLY
Both produce disease but bacteria usually are large enough to be seen under the ordinary microscope, and most viruses are not, unless an electron microscope is used. Viruses can live only within a cell whereas bacteria are found in secretions such as pus or in water or milk. There are other variants, such as in the way they attack, multiply, and produce immunity.

GIRL ESCAPES

Mrs. L. K. writes: My 13-year-old daughter has never caught measles, chickenpox, or other childhood diseases, even though she has been exposed. Isn't this an unusual situation?

REPLY
Yes, especially if she escaped measles, which is highly contagious. Children who seem to have a natural immunity to communicable diseases often contract them later in life, when they least expect them.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT — Excessive exposure to sun ages the skin.

Assemblyman Allen to Speak At Memorial Day Program

By LOIS McCLOSKEY

The Hon. William Allen, assemblyman for Warren and Forest counties, will give the Memorial Day address for the Elzie Lynch Post 334, American Legion and the Pequinot-Younger Post 8803, V.F.W., at services starting with a parade at 10 a. m. on Friday, May 30. The program was arranged by George B. King, American Legion.

The Tidioute Area School Band under director James Bodamer, will lead the parade with Lt. Col. Joseph Charles King as parade marshal. Tom McGraw is to be in charge of the color guard composed of Donald Wiles, Kenneth Williams, Frank Atkin, Don Edmiston, Kenneth Anderson, David Morrison, Eugene Blakeslee, David Kane and McGraw. Lee Copeland's firing squad will be Robert Anderson, William Konkle, Sam Konkle, William Brown, John Bailor, Richard Downey, Richard Morrison and Copeland.

The program at the Veteran's Monument will open with music by the Tidioute Band, followed by prayer by the

Ambulance Drive Names Teams

Chairman Joe Heenan Jr., in charge of the present drive for new or renewed members of the Ambulance Service of the Tidioute Volunteer Fire Co., announced his captains for township calls at a meeting on Tuesday, May 20 at 7:30 p.m., as follows: John Christy has the whole Tidioute Creek area from the borough line. James Williams and Carmen Fedele are covering Davey Hill and the River road on the Tidioute side toward Warren.

Frank Atkin and Tom McGraw will call on residents and camps in Triumph township. Tom has a long list of persons not yet signed up, who may need an ambulance in a hurry. Their calls will include Campbell Hill. Walter Morrison and Tom Miller will have a lot of camps and summer homes to visit since they have been assigned to both Watson and Limestone townships.

The record to date shows between 90 and 100 new or renewed memberships in the Ambulance Service since the drive started.

Non-members should realize that just one trip to Warren Hospital would cost $15.40 for a one-way trip at the rate of seventy cents a mile. This would pay for a three year membership. . . just consider what you would have to pay for the hundred mile trip to a Pittsburgh hospital?

Join today. . . tomorrow may be too late!

tery and in 10 nearby cemeteries most of them no longer in use. The total list this year is approximately 255, up 5 from last year, with John Fred Benner, Lyman Beecher Magill, Dr. Justin Bourquin and a Ross added to our Tidioute cemetery and one veteran in one of the outlying cemeteries. Others who were not interred in the Tidioute area include William Robinson, Don Surgalski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Surgalski of Tidioute R.D. 1 who was killed in Vietnam, Hiram Brown and James Latimer.

The nearby rural cemeteries include: Neltown, Davey Hill, Cheney, Enterprise, Fagnodus, Pineville, Excelsior, Sutton Hill, Swede Hill and Limestone, long known as the McKean cemetery. This is the ninth year that King has personally placed flags in all of these cemeteries.

LIONS CLUB INDUCTEE

Leo Stec, center, is inducted as a new Lions Club member by Jack Gadsby (l.) of Titusville Lions Club. He was sponsored by Les Noll (r.) who received a personal pin from Gadsby from the International Lions Club president of Texas, for the new member.

Lions Receive Support From County Officials

At the Tuesday, May 20 meeting, the Tidioute Lions Club was presented with a check for $100 from Warren County Commissioners, to be used for renovation of the Old Tidioute Cemetery, a project nearing completion by the Club.

Since none of the four commissioners were able to attend the meeting, the check was presented to Lion treasurer Paul Pascarella by Lion Herman Knight Jr.

At present the Club is working on the repair of the old iron fence which needs some replacement parts, some welding and a good coat of paint.

From the start of the work on the cemetery, members of the Club have expressed a desire to have the Veteran Firing Squad and bugler go to the cemetery after all activities close at the main Memorial Day Program, to honor the two Revolutionary soldiers, Arthur Magill who died in 1847 at the age of 83 and Benjamin Huff who died in 1821 at the age of 81. Also interred in the cemetery are the following soldiers of the War of 1812: Thomas Morrison, age 67 who died in 1852; Joseph and Thomas Arters sons of Richard Arters, the first permanent settler in Tidioute in 1806; also John and James Elder, perhaps sons of John Elder one of the first school teachers in this area; Joseph Huff, son of Benjamin Huff and Sam Hunter and Sam McGuire. At this time there are just two veteran flags on graves in the Old Cemetery.

Leo Stec a new member who now raises the Lion membership to 33, was sponsored by Lester Noll a six month member, and inducted by Jack Gadsby, on the youth exchange committee of Titusville Lions Club. He also presented Noll with a personal pin from the International Lions Club president who resides in Texas and has as this year's goal a membership of one million members. The pin is typically Texas with a design of boots and spurs.

Following dinner, Charles Coughlin and Bill Weaver conducted a "fun" drawing for an unidentified prize. Winner of the first number drawn was Arthur King whose prize was one yellow tulip. Second winner Leo Stec also received a yellow tulip. Final winner of the real prize was Paul Pascarella who took home a fine Bissell lawn edger.

WCTU Gives Money for Doctors Day

At its May meeting the local WCTU sent a check to Youngsville to assist in the carrying out of its Doctors Day celebration.

Mrs. Earl Sundell was co-hostess for the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Arthur King. Mrs. Sundell who had charge of devotions used Philippians, chapter 4 from the 3rd to 19th verse to illustrate her theme of "Friends of Jesus." Following prayer, she read an appropriate poem about Mothers.

Mrs. Elliott Laning, in charge of the program using "Family and Community" as her topic discussed issues of the recent primary on Tuesday, May 20. Members were again urged to send letters to state and national representatives and senators protesting the poor television programs and teen-age voting.

The possibility of having a rummage sale was discussed but no date was set for holding it. At the close of the meeting Mrs. King and Mrs. Sundell served refreshments.

Baptist Women Make Tote Bags

The Baptist Womens Missionary Society has been busy for the past few months fashioning tote bags from half-gallon plastic milk cartons, and have now completed two for its missionary trunk. The bags are made from 44 squares which must be accurately cut, punched and then crocheted together with colored yarn or floss to form the bags. They will be very durable and easy to clean, as well as attractive.

The Society's May meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Glenn Barton with Mrs. Krug Cyphert in charge of the prayer service. Mrs. Dale Storer reported on "Bashit!" from "Women of the Bible." Correspondence was read from Shepherds Inc., The Baptist Builders Club and Warners Missionary in Kentucky.

The work session was devoted to working on the tote bags and the making of bandages from used sheets. Mrs. George Nelson will be the Tuesday, June 10 hostess.

You want a new home. But you're afraid your mortgage will be too high. What can you do?

Ridge has the answer.

You've already waited a long time for your new home . . . you even have your building lot all picked out. But like everything else, the costs are high and you're concerned: "Is this the best time to start?"

The answer is yes. In fact, newspapers and magazines everywhere predict sharp rises in building costs again next year. So it's certain that putting off your new home will cost you more money. A lot more. Besides, we can show you a proven way of beating the high costs of home building:

You simply do some of the finishing work yourself — insulate, install the dry-wall and flooring, paint . . . whatever job you choose.

Sure, your Ridge dealer will do the whole job if you want him to, but each job you do subtracts from the cost of your new home and adds to its value.

And you know how important that can be in applying for a mortgage and keeping the payments within your budget.

It has worked for thousands of other families . . . in fact, 3 out of every 4 Ridge homeowners have taken advantage of this program. So it can work for you.

Helping to build your own Ridge home doesn't mean that you have to settle for anything less than the home you've always dreamed about. The reason: Ridge gives you all the choices you need to make it come true right down to the last detail. Choose the exterior and roof styles you want . . . floor plans . . . kitchen cabinets and appliances . . . and colors . . . and lighting fixtures. Everything!

But you'd better see your Ridge dealer right now . . . He'll show you how you can choose the home you want . . . and afford the home you choose.

91.89 Monthly payment on a 25-year mortgage at 7% on the basic price of the Wildwood including the foundation, basement floor and the erection of a weather-proofed exterior by your local Ridge dealer.

If you have the deed to an approved building lot, you may be able to buy a Ridge home with NO DOWN PAYMENT ston of the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland spent a four day leave visiting his parents. He spent one day in Pittsburgh making arrangements to attend Carnegie Institute of Technology, when he is discharged from the service in August.

CEMETERY AND MAUSOLEUM COMMEMORATES

MEMORIAL WEEK 1969

• western New York's most beautiful cemetery

FOR THOSE WHO PREFER ABOVE GROUND ENTOMBMENT A FEW EXTRA MILES ARE UNIMPORTANT

The cost of Mausoleum entombment is not much more — sometimes less — than earth burial. No lot, no monument or markers, no burial vault to buy. Sunset Hill contemplates building an addition to the existing Chapel Garden Mausoleum this year if sufficient commitments are received this spring.

AS AN INDUCEMENT FOR PROMPT ACTION

by those who favor this method of burial, the cemetery offers a
TEN PER CENT DISCOUNT
on commitments to purchase crypts

ONE WEEK ONLY • Saturday, May 24 - Sunday, June 1

No payments will be required until construction contracts are let — monthly payments can be arranged

The present Chapel Garden Mausoleum, pictured at right, is almost entirely sold out. Sunset Hill contemplates building an addition this year. This will represent a large outlay of money so the Cemetery cannot proceed unless it receives a sufficient response from its current announcements. Pre-construction prices are much lower than they will be when construction has begun, besides the ten percent saving possible this one week. The supply of cemetery lots (there are only sixty pair in the proposed addition) so you must commit yourself now if you wish to participate in this project.

In mausoleum entombment the casket is permanently placed in a clean, dry crypt where a drying process takes place because there is a constant circulation of fresh air. The Chapel Garden Mausoleum also contains a Columbarium for cremated remains. Limited space is available for those who favor cremation. A ten per cent discount will apply on pre-need Columbarium purchase during Memorial Week.

At left is Sunset Hill's beautiful Chapel in which committal services for mausoleum entombment are conducted with comfort and dignity. Earth burial committals are also conducted in the Chapel in winter months and other inclement weather. The building also houses the cemetery office. Sunset Hill, founded in 1932, is a non-profit membership corporation which is governed by a Board of Directors made up of seven prominent citizens from the Jamestown area. The cemetery is open to all, regardless of religion.
